"WITH STANLEY IN AFRICA"

No. 8. "The Pool of Death"

Jack manages to choke one of the leopards into submission, and throws its unconscious form to the other beast and effects his and Nadia's escape. Meanwhile Lake has divided his forces in his endeavor to find Nadia. One party is ambushed by Cameron's safari and is about to be dealt with severely when Jack rescues them from torture, earning the gratitude of Hassan, the Arab slaver. The remainder of Lake's outfit falls into the hands of the Arabs from the Walled City who intend to take Lake to their Sultana.

Stanley meets Selim ben Rashid an Arab, who gives him news of Livingstone, the first word he had received that the missionary is still alive. He sets out with renewed hope to find Livingstone, who has started back towards Ujiji, 600 miles away. Meanwhile, Jack and Nadia, overpowered by another band of Arabs from the Walled City, seek escape by means of a native dug-out. This overturns and they are hurled into the swift current which carries them towards a huge cataract.
